Webcast Agenda

- Welcome and Introduction
Emma Zinsmeister, U.S. EPA State and Local Climate and Energy Program
- Funding Strategies for Adaptation: Examples from the Water Sector
Lynn Broaddus, The Johnson Foundation
- Tracking Adaptation Efforts
Scott Burgess, Center for Climate and Energy Solutions
- Climate Change and Public Health Adaptation
Gino Marinucci, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
- Integrating Adaptation into Public Health: Case of CA Dept of Public Health
Paul English, California Department of Public Health
- Integrating Adaptation in Hazard Mitigation Planning Efforts
Alessandra Jerolleman & Kelly Klima, Natural Hazard Mitigation Association
- Joint Panel Session
- Q and A Session
- Optional Feedback

Brief Background

The climate is changing at an increasingly rapid rate.

Climate Change MITIGATION

What is it? Efforts to slow the rate of change, including reducing GHG emissions.

Why is it important? Reduce the magnitude of the future impacts of climate change.

What does it look like? Energy efficiency, renewable energy, materials management, community design, transportation, etc.

Climate Change ADAPTATION

What is it? Efforts to moderate harm and/or capitalize on opportunities presented by actual or expected changes in climate.

Why is it important? The past is no longer a good predictor of the future. To improve the success of our investments, future conditions should be considered.

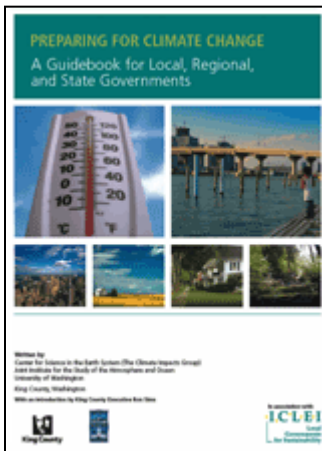

What does it look like? Adjusting building and development practices, transportation infrastructure, stormwater systems, energy systems, health programs, natural resource management, agricultural practices, emergency services, food security, etc.

Example Adaptation Planning Process

1. Build and maintain support to prepare for climate change
2. Scope projected climate impacts on programs and planning areas
3. Assess vulnerability and risk
4. Set preparedness goals and actions
5. Implement your plan and evaluate effectiveness

U.S. EPA's State and Local Climate and Energy Program

Bridging the Gap Across Environment and Energy Decision-Making

Helping state and local governments reduce GHGs

- We use co-benefits strategies to achieve GHG and policy goals
 - Environmental, energy, economic, health benefits
 - Example: EE/RE/CHP can lower costs to comply with air standards
- We foster inter-agency collaboration
 - States – air offices, energy offices, PUCs
 - Locals – planning, environmental services, energy and many other related departments
- We help state and local governments make the case for action
 - Best practice-based policy approaches
 - Analytical tools and information
 - Communications resources including peer exchanges, lessons learned
- All our resources are available at:

Adaptation Funding Opportunities

Federal Agency Opportunities

- EPA State and Local Climate and Energy Newsletter is a listserv that shares information about state and local developments in policies, programs, and opportunities <http://epa.gov/statelocalclimate/newsletters/index.html#a01>
- Grants.gov is a database for all federal grants <http://www.grants.gov/>
- EPA Grant Competition Forecast for Calendar Year 2013 provides a list of current and anticipated opportunities http://www.epa.gov/ogd/training/resources_for_communities/community_grants_table.htm
- Partnership for Sustainable Communities: Grants, Assistance & Programs offers a list of opportunities through this interagency HUD-DOT-EPA partnership <http://www.sustainablecommunities.gov/grants.html>
- EPA Adaptation Tools for Public Officials provides numerous tools and guidebooks <http://www.epa.gov/climatechange/impacts-adaptation/adapt-tools.html>
- Federal and EPA Adaptation Programs provides information and links about the adaptation efforts across the federal agencies <http://www.epa.gov/climatechange/impacts-adaptation/fed-programs.html>

Adaptation Funding Opportunities

Local Opportunities
