Following, please find OREB's review of:

DP Barcode: 220284

Registration Numbers: 37425-FL-1-Adams Flea and Tick Mist....;
56493-, Ptenocide Pet Spray; 270-XXX, Farnam Purge Plus Insecticide.

As requested, OREB has reviewed the proposed labels noted above. The question posed is, "Does OREB anticipate there will be prolonged exposure to human skin?" Due to the nature of the suggested use pattern, OREB cannot say with certainty that there will not be prolonged exposure to human skin. It is not so much a question of exposure due to the application but due to the activity patterns of some persons and their pets.

Since some of the directions for application indicate the pet should be dampened with spray mist, even though not to the point of run-off, some persons would be expected to have prolonged contact with the material. "Prolonged" is obviously highly subjective but since many people sleep with their pets and are in rather constant contact with their pets, there is the possibility of extended contact.

However, since the amount of active ingredient seems to be rather small in the containers noted, the significance of "prolonged contact" is questionable. Unless there are rather remarkable tox concerns for this material, it would seem that a 90 day dermal study is probably not warranted.
